

REFERENCE GUIDE

GATHERING RESOURCES

Major Dan Rooney, F-16 “Top Gun” Fighter Pilot and Golf Professional

CHAPTER 1: TODAY IS THE ONLY DAY YOU HAVE

Embrace today with courage, love, and service

Facing your fears; developing courage	4
Understanding “volition”: your will to choose	5
Loving by eliminating distractions: television and phone	6
Teaching service by being a role model worth modeling	7-8

T. Harv Eker, Entrepreneur and Best-Selling Author

CHAPTER 2: TRUSTING THE COMPASS WITHIN

Teach a child to access and trust her inner guidance

Asking the key question: “How will you feel about yourself?”	12
Knowing when a decision is right	13
Motivating change	14-15
Enrolling a child in self-correction; eliminating the authoritarian	16-17

Tom Conigliaro, Goldman Sachs Managing Director

CHAPTER 3: THINKING WITH YOUR HEART

Be an independent thinker and lead with your heart

Examining your values and actions as a parent	21
Volunteering as a family	22
Being an example; stopping drinking so teens will follow your example	23-24
Stepping out of your comfort zone	25

Roy Martina, M.D., Holistic Physician and Educator

CHAPTER 4: FINDING THE GOOD AND MAKING LIFE FUN

Break out of your paradigm: parenting by choice, not by default

Discovering perspectives of true health and emotional well-being	30-31
--	-------

Making fun the objective, so success comes easily and stress-free	31-32
Teaching children to like and feel good about themselves, and to feel proud of their own accomplishments	33
Loving children for who they are, not for what they accomplish	34
Being emotionally honest; not hiding your own feelings	35
Finding the good in even tough situations	35-36
Reinforcing desirable behavior; minimizing the rest	36
Using Sandwich Feedback to make behavior corrections	38

John Gray, Ph.D., Best-Selling Author and Relationship Expert

CHAPTER 5: INSPIRING COOPERATION

Support children without resorting to fear, intimidation, punishment, and shame
Allowing children to express themselves without judging or invalidating	42,46
Recognizing when it's not working; finding a better way	43
Replacing threats and coercion by inspiring cooperation	44
Motivating through benefits and rewards; supporting a child's spirit	45
Setting boundaries to allow safe expression of negative emotions to develop a strong sense of self	45-46
Using the neutral, authoritative "Commander" voice	46-47

SELF-DISCOVERY

Malouf Abraham Jr., M.D., Allergy Specialist and Art Collector

CHAPTER 6: FINDING AND FIRING YOUR SPARK OF BRILLIANCE

Focus on a child's strengths, and encourage him to act boldly
Letting your child know that dad is impressed with him	54
Valuing courage, creativity, and the willingness to try	54-55
Encouraging children to dream big—and believe in their dreams	56
Sharing wisdom around sharing family dinners	56-57
Welcoming new approaches for everyday routines	57
Focusing on what your child can do, not on what he cannot do	59,61

Henry David Abraham, M.D., Harvard Psychiatrist and Co-Recipient, Nobel Peace Prize

CHAPTER 7: THE UNIQUE YOU

Discover a child's purpose, talents, and gifts in life
Creating environments for growth; focusing on a strength	65-66
Identifying natural gifts: "I am happiest when I am ..."	67
Encouraging and nurturing an interest	69

Combat shortcomings, handicaps, or challenges
Facing fears and anxieties	64
Turning “weaknesses” into advantages	65
Dealing with low self-esteem, drugs, and destructive behavior	68

Paul Scheele, Transformational Thought Leader and Educator

CHAPTER 8: NURTURING GENIUS

Guide children towards four essential qualities: knowingness, awareness, self-esteem and resilience

Talking to and treating children like the geniuses they are	72-73
Helping children trust their own knowingness	73
Increasing awareness by asking three key questions	74
Building self-esteem by developing resiliency	75-76
Creating bedtime stories with deeper meaning	77
Communicating so you go to root of a problem: “upset, want, appreciate”	78-80
Creating rites of passage from boy to man	81-82

Terry Tillman, International Leadership Trainer and Educator

CHAPTER 9: MAKING THE TEENAGE YEARS EASY AND FUN

Relate to children like adults, replace rules with agreements, and be the example of how to live an authentic life

Showing vulnerability; being real and emotionally honest	86
Choosing to parent differently than your own parents	87
Replacing rules with co-created agreements	88
Co-creating consequences for broken agreements—and upholding them	88
Allowing natural consequences to replace punishment	89
Building bridges to common sense, instead of walls to push against	90
Accepting teenagers for who they are experimenting at being	91-92
Choosing inner security and learning to be authentic	92-95

Murray Rosenthal, D.O. FAPA, Psychiatrist and Chief Medical Officer

CHAPTER 10: IT’S YOUR RIDE

Use stories to encourage self-discovery and teach values

Facing fears	99
Understanding the struggle in order to achieve balance	100
Allowing a child to fall, then take care of himself	101-102
Helping a child work through her fears using her own unique abilities	103
Encouraging kids to push past their comfort zone, and letting them go	104-107

WINNING STRATEGIES

John Demartini, D.C., Human Behavior Specialist and Educator

CHAPTER 11: LISTENING TO YOUR INSPIRATION

Notice what inspires your child

Discriminating between “lazy video game addict” and “genius”	110-112
Observing the twelve value determinates	113
Boosting self-confidence	114

Speak relative to your child’s interests

Addressing “troubling” behavior; giving options to meet your child’s need	116, 117
Addressing bullies; identifying the unempowered you	118
Distinguishing ADHD from bored and uninspired	118, 119

Greg Link, Corporate President and Marketing Expert

CHAPTER 12: BEING THERE AND HELPING YOU DECIDE

Teach children how to make decisions for themselves to become responsible

After a divorce, being there for your kids no matter what	123
Encouraging children to do things for themselves, instead of doing for them	124
Giving kids a formula for their decision making: O.R.E.O.	124-125
Illustrating examples of risk and benefit evaluations done with kids	126-128
Allowing children to experience natural consequences by not rescuing	128
Empowering children by teaching them to communicate their needs	129
Making “being present” to your children your highest priority	131
Following your heart and loving your kids unconditionally	131

Dean Kosage, Amway Global Executive Diamond Distributor

CHAPTER 13: INCLUDING YOUR CHILDREN

Include your children in all parts of your life

Choosing not to sacrifice family for business success	133-134
Thinking outside the box to form a hybrid home school	135
Getting your children to think outside the box by never putting them in it	136-137
Teaching your kids to be independent thinkers	137-138
Developing your kids’ confidence in problem solving and finding solutions	138
Creating activity days with other kids instead of singular babysitting	138-139
Creating a family adventure instead of abandonment and separation	139
Involving your kids in your own goal setting and accountability	139-140
Teaching that failure is part of life by sharing your failures and successes	140

Edifying your spouse and your children	140-141
Edifying beautiful things around you for your child and others	141
Be a hero to your child and let them see you	142-143

Brian Alman, Ph.D., Clinical Practitioner and Wellness Expert

CHAPTER 14: YOUR INNER RESOURCES

Gather practical tools to handle day-to-day challenges
Finding great strength through intense moments	145-146
Calming down with a 1-2-3 breathing exercise	146-147
Using positive affirmations to change the focus	149
“Going to the Movies”—three steps to surmounting fear	149-151
Overcoming the fifteenth-row inner critic by “hearing” it	151
Accessing the inner perspective and giving kids the tools to do it	152

Dino Rossi, Retired Washington State Senator and Real Estate Developer

CHAPTER 15: HOW TO NEVER FAIL

Teach your kids they will never fail unless they stop trying
Overcoming discouragement by reframing loss into something positive	154-155
Building a child’s self confidence by celebrating every single victory	157
Helping kids see obstacles as temporary speed bumps	157
Tapping into inner resources to keep moving forward	158
Letting go even when you’re afraid—so your child can fly on her own	158-159
Providing a spiritual perspective as part of a solid foundation	159-160
Trusting that you’re getting through, even when it doesn’t seem so	160

Chris Dudley, Foundation Executive, Businessman, and Retired NBA Player

CHAPTER 16: FUNDAMENTALS FOR WINNING IN LIFE!

Teach a child the fundamental success “must do’s” to make her dreams realities
Having role models for success in different areas of life	164
Inspiring a child to believe in herself	164-165
Encouraging a child to stretch and go beyond the comfort zone	165
Repelling bullies by building internal strength	166
Encourage kids to dream big and embrace failure	166
The power of a dream to motivate and persevere	166-167
Reframing failure as an opportunity to make adjustments	166
Helping your child approach life with balance, and have a back-up plan	167-168
Instilling the life-altering value of giving back	168-169

UTILIZING SUPPORT

Thomas Moore, Theologian and Best-Selling Author

CHAPTER 17: A WORLD OF MENTORS

Introduce your child to a world of diverse environments and mentors

- Taking the limits off—all fathering doesn't have to come from Dad 173
- Recognizing that you can't teach what you don't know 174-175
- Exposing your kids to extraordinary people who model values you admire 175-176
- Keeping kids in the room during lively adult discussions 175
- Recognizing that the most valuable life learning happens outside of school 175
- Taking your kids with you as much as possible for work and travel 175-176
- Opening the world for your kids by taking them beyond your family heritage 177

Robert Mirabal, Grammy Award-Winning Native American World Musician

CHAPTER 18: LIVING WITH TRADITION AND COMMUNITY

Model for your children a lifestyle based on traditional values

- Participating in a traditional community to effectively father a child 180-181
- Utilizing the extended family for support and learning 181
- Recognizing that your children are your best teachers 182
- Committing to your own health and wellness and being honest about your failings 182-182
- Encouraging children to question and challenge 185
- Speaking to your children as adults and spiritual beings; not shying away 186

Freddie Ravel, Grammy-Nominated International Recording Artist and Speaker

CHAPTER 19: CONNECTING AND PLUGGING IN

Create daily habits to connect with your inner self, with others, and with nature

- Practicing a modified daily routine of yoga and mediation to help kids connect within 189-190
- Planting a back-yard vegetable garden to connect with nature 188-189
- Bicycling every day to talk and connect, even with small children 191
- Participating in camping and other planned outdoor activities 192-193
- Working from home to include your children 197
- Exposing children to positive individuals with strong core values 197
- Creating boundaries to support emotional security and connection 193-196
- Creating boundaries with electronics: the computer and television 194

Jim Bunch, Entrepreneur and Ultimate Life Coach

CHAPTER 20: ENVIRONMENTS THAT MAKE OR BREAK YOU

Design and create environments for you and your child that nurture and propel growth

- Examining yourself, being honest, and using your own networks for support . . . 201-202
- Looking for an underlying need that's not being met to solve a child's problem behavior 203-204
- Realizing that environments either hold us back or help us evolve 204
- Focusing the school on what your child does well—his strengths and abilities 205-206
- Constantly reinforcing in your child “Here’s where you’re great!” 207
- Celebrating your child’s homecoming 207-208
- Immersing a baby into daddy early 208-209
- Replacing willpower with supportive environments 209-210

Vishen Lakhiani, Entrepreneur and Internet Marketing Expert

CHAPTER 21: AN EARLY ADVANTAGE

Cultivate in your child a love of learning and a head start in school and life

- Realizing that a baby’s ability to learn develops before his ability to speak—kindergarten is too late to start 214
- Understanding that every child is born a genius, and craves learning in order to survive 214
- Nurturing cognitive development in babies with targeted exercises to increase physical movement and mobility 215
- Teaching numbers and reading to very young children 216-218
- Teaching multiple languages and stimulating young brains 218
- Nurturing, not hindering, natural abilities 219

MONEY AND RESPONSIBILITY

Bob Rotella, Ph.D., Olympic and Professional Sports Psychologist

CHAPTER 22: PREPARING A KID TO STAND ON HER OWN

Teach a child to be independent by indirect methods: demonstrating, listening, and being there

- Creating environments that support learning 224
- Exposing a child to independent thinkers and rich experiences 225
- Allowing a child to learn by watching and listening, instead of lecturing 225-226
- Promoting success: being your child’s cheerleader versus her coach 226-227
- Being there as more effective than lecturing/coaching/teaching 228
- Creating winners by teaching kids to be great losers 229

Volunteering as a family to build happy people	230
Allowing older teens to become self-reliant by not bailing them out	231

Shore Slocum, Ph.D., Professional Speaker and Educator

CHAPTER 23: IT’S ALL ABOUT “EARNERSHIP”

Constantly teach the principle that anything of value in life must be earned in some way

Teaching kids to step up and take action if there is something they want	235-236
Reinforcing the concept that the price of privilege is responsibility	236
Recognizing that your first job is to be your children’s parent—then you can be their friend	237
Having your child earn money verses getting an allowance	237
Helping your kids uncover their gifts and figure out why they’re here	238
Guiding your child to face her issues, and correct blind spots or shortcomings	239
Taking full responsibility and helping kids become accountable to themselves	240
Resisting the urge to protect and rescue; allowing kids to fall	240
Building a child’s self esteem by celebrating wins and successes	241
Letting kids go to find their own destiny and live their own Soul purpose	242

Nick Nerangis, Real Estate Developer and Franchise Owner

CHAPTER 24: DEVELOPING WINGS

Encourage a child to step out of his comfort zone and solve it himself

Nudging a child towards age-appropriate autonomy	245-246
Challenging children to think and do for themselves	245
Asking for, and seriously considering, kids’ opinions whenever possible	245
Letting children make decisions and problem-solve: the family council	246
Allowing children to accept full responsibility for the results of their decisions	248
Instilling the habit of focusing on solutions, not problems	248-249
Insisting that children leave the nest and fly on their own, to realize their own worth	250-251

Tim Johnson, Entrepreneur and Real Estate Investor

CHAPTER 25: TEACHING A CHILD TO FISH

Create financially capable and independence children by consistently connecting money to work and their own efforts

Creating opportunities for your child to be resourceful and solve problems	255
--	-----

Understanding that one can handicap children by giving them everything	256
Tying money to work, and allowance to doing chores	256
Explaining the advantages of contract work (entrepreneurship) over an hourly wage job	256-257
Teach self-sufficiency, problem solving, and financial responsibility
Teaching the three components of successful relationships	257-258
Establishing house rules to encourage self-sufficiency	260
Learning how to budget	260-261
Not rescuing: resisting the urge to loan money and bail children out	261-263
Letting children experience failure and consequence from their decisions	258-264
Establishing the difference between a child's wants and what he truly needs	265
Giving your kids what they need; allowing them to earn what they want	265-266

Christopher "Kip" Forbes, Vice Chairman and Art Collector

CHAPTER 26: LEAVING A LEGACY

Create a bridge to a harmonious family future with the ideal last will and testament
Making your will and testament transparent to your family while you are still alive ...	269
Eliminating problems, discord, and strife by discussing and remedying them ahead of time	269
Watching reactions to disclosures, then making adjustments	270
Solving dispute with open dialogue, consensus, and simplicity	270
Creating a fair way to divide possessions	271
Guiding a teenager to handle fiscal details (such as making a will) routinely ...	271-272

TOUGHER STUFF

John Assaraf, Business-Building Expert and Best-Selling Author

CHAPTER 27: COMMUNICATING EVEN WHEN IT'S TOUGH

Get in touch with your own feelings
Moving away from the hitting and screaming of your parents, who didn't know what else to do	276
Committing to your own healing	278
Communicate openly
Explaining divorce to young children	277
Sharing feelings; validating a child's "knowingness"	278
Making rules about dating (for divorced parents)	279
Discussing sex, drugs, and more—openly	280
Seeding supportive thoughts nightly: "You're a genius ..."	281

Ted Tillinghast, Arbonne International, Executive National Vice President

CHAPTER 28: BE THE EXAMPLE, CHANGE THE ENVIRONMENT

Practice tough love, walk your talk, and safeguard your child's environment

Giving ten-to-one love-to-discipline to earn the respect of a child as a stepparent . . .	285
Realizing the importance of not withholding love when disciplining	286
Helping a troubled teen believe in himself and make good decisions	287
Modeling how a "real man" makes decisions for himself	287-288
Modeling living by your own values and standing up for what you believe	288
Living by example; choosing not to drink, and not giving in to pressure	288
Doing the tough things to keep an at-risk teen safe	289
Changing the school and social environments to effect permanent change	289

Kim Jobst, D.M., Integrated Medicine Specialist and Medical Homeopath

CHAPTER 29: FOLLOWING THROUGH

Set boundaries for your kids, and follow through with consequences no matter what

Recognizing a child will test you and look for the boundaries	294
Understanding masculine and feminine energy and its role in a healthy family	294-295
Following through with consequences; the importance of keeping one's word	295
Setting firm boundaries so children become responsible adults	295
Letting lessons "ripen": some things just need time to be understood	297-298

Jack Elias, Clinical Therapist and Educator

CHAPTER 30: HANDLING DIFFICULTIES

Access your inner resources to respond to emotionally trying times

Managing yourself when you want to lash out in anger	303
Embracing and inspire thoughts to alter your perspective	304-305
Facing yourself; discovering fear as the true source of your anger	305
Using a coping technique: PTA	306-307
Being emotionally honest with yourself so children will do the same	307
Recognizing the mirror our children hold up for us as parents	308

Brother Ishmael Tetteh, West African Child Educator and Author

CHAPTER 31: HOW TO IMMUNIZE A CHILD AGAINST NEGATIVITY

Equip your child with a set of effective tools to strengthen her when you're not around

Teaching children self-esteem: looking within and "dressing" their inner self	312
Acknowledging the good things about yourself daily	313
Healing from negative words and labels said by others	313

Expressing hurt, angry feelings freely and safely in order to release them	314
Growing from night-and-day thinking to full-spectrum thinking	315
Teaching the Immunization Game (“It is Not About Me”) for children to protect themselves	316
Using a “Secret Sign” to empower and protect children from bullies	316-317
Create a family purpose statement for healthy whole living
Meeting regularly for a Family Assessment Hour	318
Celebrating love and joy together	318

Jonathan Reckford, Habitat for Humanity CEO

CHAPTER 32: LOVE, BE PRESENT, AND SERVE

Love others and show it by being present to them
Admitting imperfections; extending grace to yourself	322-323
Developing family rituals and routines to create whole quality time	325-326
Scheduling time alone through “dad dates”	327
Develop a “giving-back” heart in children
Having a biblical reference	324, 328
Introducing the world’s needs without overwhelming your children	328
Including the whole family in service	328-329

Billy Shore, Share Our Strength Executive Director, Anti-Hunger and Anti-Poverty Child Advocate

CHAPTER 33: PRICELESS HEIRLOOMS THAT NEVER RUST

Seek wisdom that gives a greater perspective on life
Creating one-on-one time to just hang out with your child and connect	334
Adopting a hundred-foot perspective to help with rejection, disappointment, or loss	335
Providing kids with tools that make sense to help them through life passages	336
Providing a better, wiser perspective on gossip	336-337
Suspending judgment—looking for the other side of the story	337-338
Understanding that setbacks and defeat usually come before success	339

Rick Lipsey, Sports Illustrated Journalist and Philanthropist

CHAPTER 34: YOUR SPIRITUAL I.D. AND THE GOLDEN RULE

Listen to Divine guidance and teach your children to do the same
Remembering that a child is made in God’s image and never separated from His care	342
Constantly reinforcing the wisdom of loving others, and the Golden Rule	343
Demonstrating by example that the Golden Rule is not just words; it must be lived ..	344

Helping a child understand the power and rewards of giving and helping others . . .	344
Asking for guidance when you are unsure how to handle a situation	344-345
Helping a child find the good in someone who has been hurtful	345
Guiding a child to resolving conflict with another	345
Expressing gratitude through actions	346
Building an attitude of gratitude	347
Having a Spiritual Breakfast	347

Roland Warren, National Fatherhood Initiative President

CHAPTER 35: SHOWING UP

Show up, and get involved and engaged in your child’s life

Becoming a father by moving from being “self-centered” to “other-centered”	352
Recognizing and deciding to change negative patterns learned from your own dad . .	353
Choosing to embrace responsibilities to your family	354
Learning how to be involved and engaged	354

Live by principles: take responsibility and be accountable

Teaching a boy how to treat girls and women	354-355
Sweating the small stuff (yes, you need to)	355-356,358
Emphasizing acting responsibly and treating others with respect	356
Realizing your kids will behave the way you behave—you are their model	357
Teaching the AC equation: actions always have consequences	357-358
Discussing sex openly, and holding teens accountable for their sexual behavior	359
Modeling values anchored in faith for a consistent message	360
Focusing on developing character from the outset	360
Handling your own mistakes as a parent	361